

Frank Packer

Head of Economics & Financial Markets for Asia and the Pacific
Bank for International Settlements

Frank Packer is the Head of Economics and Financial Markets at the Representative Office for Asia and the Pacific, Bank for International Settlements (BIS). His responsibilities include the oversight of economic research conducted by the BIS' Asian office, as well as meetings and conferences organised by the BIS with central bank shareholders in the region. Prior to his reassignment to the Asia Representative Office in 2009, Frank was the head of Financial Markets in the Research and Policy Analysis group of the Monetary and Economic Department at the BIS' head office in Basel, and was also editor of the Bank's Quarterly Review of International Banking and Financial Market Developments. Prior to joining the BIS in 2003, Frank had worked for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and Nikko Citigroup in Tokyo. He has a Ph.D. from Columbia University; an MBA from the University of Chicago, and a BA from Harvard.