Remarks:

1. The Silent Period, or Blackout Period, is a time during which MPC members should refrain from giving interviews or opinions that could influence monetary policy decisions. They should also avoid trading securities or conducting financial transactions that could affect credibility, transparency, and impartiality in their duties. This is based on the Bank of Thailand's regulations on the code of conduct for MPC members (B.E.2553) and the regulations on preventing conflicts of interest for MPC members (B.E.2566).
2. The Silent Period begins 7 days prior to the first day of MPC meeting and continues until the day of MPC decision annoucement.
3. Please see the schedule of MPC meetings and MPC materials release date in the link below
